

Got your back

An extremely thoughtful moment in DaVinci Resolve. When you drop the first video clip into a new project, it suggests to update the settings of the entire project, on the correct assumption that the first media might set the tone of the whole thing.

“You can’t undo this action” is scary and kind of... untrue? But I’ve stopped reading by then. I press Enter and it saves me a trip to a complex project settings dialog box I always forget the location of.

Newer

Older

13th December 2025

The original loading state

13th December 2025

“In my greatest hour of need, w...

Marcin Wichary © 2022-2025

Archive RSS feed Mastodon Email QR Code

Made with Montaigne and by anton